

Complaints procedure

This leaflet explains what to do if you have a complaint about any aspect of our service. We treat all complaints seriously and aim to resolve them as quickly and fully as we can. Making a complaint will not affect your future care or treatment at the Trust.

How do I make a complaint

Talk it through

Talk to an appropriate member of staff in the relevant department or ward and they will try to sort things out as quickly as possible.

- If you are an inpatient on a ward, the best person to speak to is the ward manager or senior nurse on duty.
- If you are at an outpatient appointment, ask reception for help or ask to speak to a senior member of staff.

Contact Patient Advice and Liaison Service (PALS)

If your concern has not been resolved, contact the PALS team. They will try to help you straight away through liaison with hospital staff. If they cannot, or you decide you want to register a complaint, they can discuss this with you. They can explain how we investigate and respond to complaints about our services, and put you in touch with outside groups that can assist you.

PALS are conveniently located on the ground floor near the main entrances of both King's College Hospital and The Princess Royal University Hospital. They are open between 9:00-4:30pm Monday to Friday excluding Bank Holidays.

Our PALS service can be very busy and you might be connected to our voicemail – please do leave your message and we will respond to you as soon as we can but within 3-5 working days. All emails are looked at during the working day.

Register a complaint

If after speaking with us you want to register a complaint, please do so as soon as you can. This is important as we will usually only investigate complaints that are made within a year of when you were aware that things went wrong or experienced a poor service.

You can have an outside advocate, friend or relative representing or supporting you through the complaints process. NHS Complaints Advocacy can give you free advice about making complaints. This service is independent of the NHS and it will not pass on any information you have discussed without your permission. Its contact details are at the end of this leaflet.

If you are complaining on behalf of someone else, we may need to get their written consent before we can disclose their personal health information to you. A form will be sent to you with our acknowledgement of your complaint.

To help us to investigate your complaint, we will need full written details of your concerns, how you want us to put things right, and your contact details so that we can provide a response. See the 'Ways to complain' box on page five for contact details.

We will aim to complete our investigation within 25 working days from when we acknowledge your complaint. However if your complaint is very complex involving a number of different specialists or services, our investigation timeframe will be 40 working days. Occasionally we may need to investigate your concerns through a different process which we will tell you.

When we have finished the investigation, the Chief Executive, their representative or an appropriate manager will give you a written response to your complaint.

What can I do if I am unhappy with your response?

Tell us

Let us know if you are not happy with our response. We will look again at any issues that you feel we have not dealt with properly and answer any other questions you may have.

We may also be able to arrange for you to meet relevant managers and senior medical or nursing staff to discuss your complaint. This can help to clear up any areas of concern and to answer your questions about our response.

We may also agree to ask an independent clinician to review the patient's medical records and write a report on the care we provided.

Contact the Health Service Ombudsman

If you are not satisfied with our response, you have the right to ask the Health Service Ombudsman to review your complaint. However it is important to note that the Trust must be given a chance to address your concerns first.

The contact details for the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman are at the end of this leaflet.

Our commitment to you

King's College Hospital NHS Foundation Trust aims to be open with its patients. If there is any problem with your treatment or care, we aim to tell you openly and honestly what has happened as soon as we can. Where necessary, we will carry out an investigation. In all cases we will give you information, try to answer your questions and tell you what we are doing to put the matter right. This applies whether we find out about a problem as it happens, from something that you tell us, or from investigating a complaint or incident.
