

Having intravenous sedation for dental treatment

What is intravenous sedation?

- It is medicine that will make you feel relaxed.
- It is given through a plastic tube in your arm or hand.

You may take your medicines at the normal time unless the dentist tells you otherwise.

Please wear flat shoes and loose, comfortable clothes to the appointment.

Tell the dentist if you are having a baby or trying for a baby.

Tell the dentist if you feel ill.

Before your appointment...

You must bring someone with you who is over 18 years old.

They must:

- Come with you to the appointment
- Wait while you have the treatment
- Take you home
- Stay with you the rest of the day
- Stay with you for the night
- If you do not have someone with you we will not be able to treat you

- This is because if you have this treatment you can't be left on your own for 24 hours

Before your appointment...

Do not drink alcohol 24 hours before the appointment.

Do not take recreational drugs 48 hours before the appointment, including cannabis (weed).

Do not wear nail varnish or false nails.

During your appointment...

You will be asked to take a seat in the dental chair.

The nurse will put a band on your arm to take your blood pressure and put a clip on your finger to measure your breathing.

The dentist may spray medicine (sedation drug) up your nose before placing a small plastic tube with a needle in your arm or hand.

The dentist will need to look at the veins in your arm or your hand, so the nurse will hold your arm.

The dentist will put a small plastic tube with a needle in the back of your hand or arm and put a plaster over it.

The liquid medicine (sedation drug) will be given through the plastic tube to make you relaxed.

When you are very relaxed the dentist will look in your mouth and do your treatment.

After your treatment you will be asked to stay in the clinic for a short time before going home.
